Hi Bill,

Thank you for your order. Attached is the Statement Converter program (.xla) and sample configuration files. Installation and usage instructions are here: <http://www.StatementConverter.com/home.php> (Home > How to Install the Program).

New: You do not need to install the attached sample "SC_config_xyz" files — the program will create them automatically when needed. (They are attached only for consistency with the instructions in the installation video; it's okay to save them to your computer, but it's no longer necessary).

Let me know if you have any questions or feedback.

— Steve Rumberg, Converter-in-Chief

Important notes:

- 1. Installation:* Install the program as explained on the website (it is NOT installed by clicking on the attached .XLA file).
- 2. Do a test import:* Before doing your first conversion, make a copy of your statement file and delete all but a few representative transactions from the file. Then, use that smaller sample file to do a test conversion and view the results in QB. That way, if you decide to change any settings, you don't have to delete so many items from QB. Once you are satisfied with how your data is being converted, delete the sample transactions from QB and start converting your real statement files.
- 3. Error or question?* If you receive an error, your statement may have a different format than the one I have from your bank. Please see the Help page and email me for free help.
